

Thanks for completing that!

---

That's right. The idea is that we write our hypothesis tests to understand population parameters. That is, data and the statistics collected from data are useful as a means to understanding values that are true about an entire population of interest.

CONTINUE